Poetical.

Only a Kiss.

ONLY a kiss—a trifle slight—
Just eager lips one moment blent,
Two faces lit with kindly light,
One thrill across two pulses sent.

Strangers, so few bright, short hours past!
Strangers to-morrow, as before?
Ah, no! where'er our fate be cast,
I hold thee, love, forevermore.

Can wake despondence from its gloom,
Crimson to life its sullen gray,
And bid our soul-flowers blush and bloom.

You've touched my brow with festal wine,
With honor proud as crowned kings;
The lips that once were pressed to thine
Are sacred from all meaner things.

Others shall know what I but guess,
And keep the joy I snatched to-day;
But memory guards thy one caress
For mine, mine only, mine for aye.

When souls have touched in lips that meet,
They part not sullen, sad, and cold;
Still clings an influence subtly sweet,
One touch that fuses dross to gold.

Count it no loss, or lavish waste,
The little pearl you careless spend;
Gleams not the cup we only taste?
Must joy delay till love's at end?

Safe in my heart thy jewel lies,
Relic and type—my sum of bliss,
Near thee or far, I keep my prize,
Thy first—perchance thy only kiss!

PRESIDENT JACKSON DIDN'T UNDERSTAND FRENCH.

Henry A. Wise, of Va., has published a volume of "Recollections," from which we take this good one on President Jackson:

But, on another occasion, his ignorance of language did entangle him in a ridiculous mistake, and almost in a scrape. During his administration, while Mr. Louis McLane, of Delaware, was Secretary of State, France sent a certain dashing minister to Washington, a young man just elevated above the grade of Charge, whose passion was display. His outfit of equipage, grooms, postillions and gold lace was magnificent. He called on the Secretary of State to appoint an audience with the President; and Mr. McLane, an accomplished, easy gentleman, begged him to call the next morning at 10 o'clock at the State office, and he would accompany and present him to the President.

Monsieur le Ministeur mistook as to the place of calling. He thought he was to call at the President's mansion at 10 o'clock A. M. Accordingly, in full panoply of costume, in coach-and-four, with attendants, grooms, postillions, out-riders and footmen, at the hour appointed he drove up to the door of the White House, instead of the State Department where Mr. McLane was awaiting his arrival.

At that time the President was served by a French cook, and the celebrated Irishman, Jemmy O'Neal, was General Jackson's petted major domo. The hour was about the time of General Jackson's finising puff of the pipe after breakfast, and he smoked, as he did everything else with all his might. His mode was no Latakia curl, no dreamy, thready line from barely opened lips; but a full drawing and expanding volume of white cloud rising up whiff after whiff, puff after puff, and bowl and stem and pipe all smoked as hard and fast as they could, and the fire was red and the ashes hot, and the whole room was so obfuscated that one could hardly breathe its atmosphere or see. His usual mode of sitting while smoking, was with his left leg thrown across the right, and the left toe brought behind the right tendon-Achilles, and the long pipe stem resting on the fork or crotch of the two knees, and reaching nearly to the floor. He smoked the old Powhatan bowl, with reed stem very long. In this attitude he was sitting and smoking while Mr. McLane was waiting at the State Office for Mr. Minister, and while Mr. Minister was riding up to the Presidential Mansion. He arrived—the French cook in the kitchen, Jemmy O'Neal about his business, and General Jackson alone in his office. A bustle was made, bell began to ring, Jemmy was summoned to the door, and there presented itself all this parade. The divil the word could Jemmy understand, and the best he could do was to run up stairs to the General and announce somebody very grand, but Jemmy winked that all didn't seem right, as there seemed too much fuss for that soon in the morning, and it might be, after all, an imposition. "Och, there was no telling about the thing, it was so unusual!" It might turn out what afterwards occurred—a Lawrence affair! The General quietly replied, "Oh, Jemmy, show the stranger up—we will see who it is." Jemmy ran, and Jackson sat smoking, when presently the room-door was thrown wide open, and a man in of gold lace entered, cocked hat, with bullion and white feather, flourished in hand, making a salaam to the right and a salaam to the left with tremendous sweeps, whizzing and whirring French with vehement gesture and approaching nearer and nearer; it seemed threatening in the extreme!

The President quit smoking, beat the bowl of his pipe in his hand, rose quickly, took hold of the back of the chair, and exclaimed with a strong voice. "By the eternal gods, Jimmy O'Neal, who is this?"

Jemmy, with eyes and ears open, and hands ready, was amazedly looking on, when, fortunately, he bethought him of the French cook, who with his shirt sleeves rolled up to his shoulders, and just as he was, besprinkled with flour, ran up with Jemmy, arriving just in time to save Mr. Minister's pate from being smashed by the cleek in General Jackson's hands.

"Oh!" said the General; "walk in, sir, there is no ceremony here!" and he was about taking the Minister by both hands just as Mr. McLane entered to see the mistake, to witness the prevention of the catastrophe, and to enjoy the joke, which made him a thousand times afterward "shake" with jollity "like a bowlful of jelly."

About Circuses.

There are in the United States traveling through the Summer season no less than forty-four different circus companies. The fitting out of a first-class circus, exclusive of any menagerie, costs fully $100,000. The expense of a new tent, with poles, ropes, seats, lamps, banners, entrance curtain, is a little short of $5,000. The baggage wagons range in value from $270 to $700. The extra horses needed for them are from $500 to $600 per pair, and the great golden chariot for musicians costs from $1,500 to $2,000, and the ring carpet for tumbling costs from $200 to $500, according to size and quality. Trick horses range from $1,600 to $3,000 in value, pad horses from $1,200 to $2,200, horseback act horses from $1,200 to $2,200, trick ponies from $400 to $1,000, and the trick mules often cost $1,000.

First-class stock gymnasts and riders receive from $75 to $100 per week and their board for the traveling season. First-class men and women riders receive from $60 to $200 per week and their board; clowns from $60 to $100, and the mass of riders from $25 to $50. Equestrian stars receive from $500 to $1,500 per month. Six to ten acrobats, six riders and half a dozen supernumeraries, usually form the complement of a circus, in addition to the stars. The daily expenses of such an establishment are from $600 to $1000.

Acrobats and gymnasts begin their education for the ring at six or eight years of age, when their young limbs are pliable, and sometimes earlier, and continue their violent exercises until nearly fifty, when their muscles become too rigid for the work. It is a mistake to suppose that circus men lead dissipated and spendthrift lives. The exercise of their calling requires relaxed sinews, a clear head, and a body in complete health. A miscalculation, or a failure of strength during a leap, might entail death. They are, therefore, very sparing, or entirely abstemious, in the use of strong liquors, and very moderate in any gratification of sense whatever. Retired showmen may be found in many parts of the country and are esteemed citizens. Their fondness for horses naturally leads them to a country life, where they can maintain their favorites cheaply.

The amount invested in the forty-four circuses and menageries is $2,500,000. A town of 2000 inhabitants will require about $200 for advance posters, and large cities $500 to $1000. Circuses do not travel during the Winter in the Northern States. They either lay up until the Spring, and start upon their tours from the 1st of April to the 10th of May, or they travel in the Southern States, beginning their marches from the 1st to the 10th of November. About ten of the forty-four proprietors are wealthy but the majority of them are in the hands of sheriffs from two to twenty times during each season. The weather is their greatest enemy, a rainy day setting them back badly.

The boss school-master showed me round, and the sweetest lot of lasses I ever saw were those lasses. They beat lasses candy. It was like looking at a great big patch of ripe strawberries, all of 'em sweet, but here and there one of 'em a little bigger than the rest, and somehow I liked the biggest one best. I told the boss that I didn't think this could be a good school.

Says he: "Why?"

Said I: "There are too many misses here for correct lessons."

Then he called up a lovely girl in green merino, with a yellow silk string round her neck, and she stepped up to a nice clean blackboard and took a piece of chalk and daubed it all up. Then the boss exclaimed: "What do you think of that?"

I told him that any fool could make white marks on to a blackboard with a piece of chalk. "Give her a piece of charcoal," says I, "and if she makes them white marks with that, then she will be smart."

Then he said it was from memory.

"No!" said I, "you don't say that is from memory; what in thunder is the thing anyhow?" It looked like a specimen of kaboomining.

"Why," said he, "that is the map of Asia."

"Drawn by a minor," said I; "that makes it Asia Minor."

Then he asked me what I took it for, and I told him I took it for a skating pond. That ended the geography lesson and we went to mathematics. The boss told me to give 'em a problem to solve. I did, and I don't think they have solved it yet. I got up and I said:

"My dear young ladies, I propose to you the following problem, and I'll give you ten minutes to stick your fingers in your ears, and rock to and fro to solve it: If it takes one hundred years for a hard shell clam to hop one mile on one foot, avoirdupois measure, how long will it take a locomotive going forty miles an hour to reach its destination, apothecaries' weight?"

They couldn't one of 'em do it. One wanted to know how old the clam was, another where the destination; in fact they wanted me to do the sum for 'em, and I got disgusted and left.

During a class-meeting held several years since by the Methodist brethren of a southern village. Brother Jones went among the colored portion of the congregation. Finding there an old man notorious for his endeavor to serve God on the Sabbath and Satan the rest of the week, he said: "Well, Brother Dick, I'm glad to see you here! Haven't stole any turkeys since I saw you last, Brother Dick?" "No, no, Brudder Jones; no turkeys." "Nor any chickens, Brother Dick?" "No, no, Brudder Jones; no chickens." "Than, the Lord, Brother Dick! That's doing well, my brother!" said Brother Jones, leaving Brother Dick, who immediately relieved his over-burdened conscience by saying to a near neighbor with an immense sigh of relief: "Ef he'd a said ducks, he'd a had me!"

The Strength of the Law.

You have thousands of readers (writes a correspondent at Nashville, Tennessee) who appreciate a good thing at the expense even of that "bulwark of our liberties," the trial by jury. The Hon. N—— B——, for many years before the war, and at present, our highly respected circuit judge, while perhaps as good a nisi prius judge as has ever worn the judicial ermine, is at the same time one of the most genial of men. No one enjoys or can tell a good story better than he. This one I think well worthy of preservation in your treasury of good things the Editor's Drawer. Not many years ago, the judge says, a man was on trial at Waynesburg, in this State, on a charge of murder. The evidence for the State in—of itself fatally defective—the defendant on his part, by the testimony of several unimpeachable witnesses, established a perfect "alibi." The judge and every one else supposed the prosecuting attorney would thereupon give up the case. But no; he was an obstinate fellow, whom the defendant's counsel had made mad, and, moreover, he "had no use for" the defendant any way, and argue the case he would. Court adjourned till the next morning. Meanwhile our attorney-general spent a good portion of the night in ransacking the books for "bloody cases," more especially those in which the judges had indulged in a vast deal of rhetoric in their descriptions of the horrible nature of the crime of murder. These extracts he read to the jury in his speech the next morning, quoting also freely from the Old Testament as to the proper disposition to be made of the murderer, and closed up in a perfect conflagration of English adjectives in giving his own notions as to the indescribable heinousness of the crime of murder. The Court then charged the jury briefly who, after a few moments' retirement, brought in a verdict of "Guilty of murder in the first degree!" Of course a new trial was granted. Defendant's counsel, however, was naturally curious to know how the jury could have found that verdict, and so, walking up to one of the most intelligent of the twelve, he said to him, "How on earth did you find that verdict? on what evidence did you base it?"

"Oh!" said the juryman; "thar wa'n't nothing in the evidence that teched him; but, you see, the law was so —— strong!"—EDITOR'S DRAWER, in Harper's Magazine for June.

AT Louisville, Kentucky, last year, the canvasser for the City Directory, visited, among other places, the office of the American Merchants' Union Express Company, and made a careful note of all names and residences of the clerks, officers and attaches of the company as they were given to him. In the list appeared the following: "Terhune, Peter, with A. M. U. Ex. Co., bds. Louisville Hotel." The name of the agent was to appear in large letters, the extra charge of one dollar being paid at the time. In due time the directory appeared, with Peter Terhune, Esq., as the agent of the company, in large type. The canvasser had, however, made a mistake in the name. Peter was in reality an attache of the office, but was a dog, belonging to one of the clerks, who had given the name to the canvasser in fun. Strangers in the city, who have business at the office, invariably ask for Peter Terhune, and letters of all kinds on business or private matters, come addressed to the dog, who, it is reported, bears his blushing honors with great meekness.

MORE novelties are the result of accident than is generally supposed. The origin of blue-tinted paper came about by a mere slip of the hand. William East, an English paper maker, once upon a time set his men to work and went away on business. While the men were at dinner Mrs. East accidentally let a blue bag fall into one of the vats of pulp. Alarmed at the occurrence she determined to say nothing about it. Great was the astonishment of the workmen when they saw the peculiar color of the paper, and great the anger of Mr. East when he returned and found that a whole vat of pulp had been spoiled. After giving the paper made from it warehouse room for four years, Mr. East sent it up to his agent in London to be sold "for what it would fetch." "For what it will fetch!" said the agent, misunderstanding the meaning; "well it certainly is a novelty, but he must not expect too much." So he sold the whole at an advance upon the market price, and wrote to the mills for as much more as he could get. The surprise of Mr. East may be imagined. He hastened to his wife, who found courage to confess her share in the fortunate accident, and to claim a reward which she received in the shape of a new cloak. Mr. East kept his secret for a short time, supplied the market with the novel tint, until the demand far exceeded the supply, and other makers discovering the means used, competed with him.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE BY A HUNTER.—This is what happened to a North Carolina 'coon hunter while "the brilliant November moon was riding in the azure vault, affording her queenly light." He was out hunting in what are termed the "low lands," when the hoarse notes of his dog told him that the varmint, whatever it was, had taken to a tree. Approaching, and not wishing to spend his strength in felling the tree, he concluded to climb it. No sooner said than done; up he went and just about the time he was making ready to give the "critter" a shake out, down the animal came with a sudden rush, and avoiding the dogs, reached another tree and ensconced himself amid its branches. Nothing daunted, our hunter again pursued him; this time he obtained a clear view of the unknown, and came to the conclusion that it was the biggest raccoon that ever he saw. Again the something descended with fearful rapidity and again he was up another tree. This time, however, his bulk was clearly perceptible and the death-dealing double barrel brought him down. It was a huge tiger cat, vulgarly called "wild cat."—Missouri Democrat.

David Garrick and the Mastiff.

One very sultry evening in the dog-days Garrick performed the part of "Lear." In the first four acts he received the accustomed tribute of applause; at the conclusion of the fifth, when he wept over the body of Cordelia, every eye caught the soft infection.

At this interesting moment, to the astonishment of all present, his face assumed a new character, and his whole frame appeared agitated by a new passion. It was not tragic, it was evidently an endeavor to suppress a laugh.

In a few seconds the old attendant nobles appeared to be affected in the same manner, and the beauteous Cordelia who was lying extended on a crimson couch, opening her eyes to see what occasioned the interruption, leaped from her sofa, and with the majesty of England the gallant Albany, and tough old Kent, ran laughing off the stage.

The audience could not account for this strange termination of a tragedy in any other way than by supposing that the dramatis personæ were seized with a sudden frenzy; but their risibility had a different source.

A fat Whitechapel butcher, seated in the centre of the front bench of the pit, was accompanied by his mastiff, who, being accustomed to sit on the same seat with his master, at home, naturally supposed that he might here enjoy the same privilege. The butcher sat very far back; and the dog finding a fair opening, got on the seat, and fixing his forepaws on the rails of the orchestra, peered at the performers

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, June 7, 1872.

Charles R. Buckalew.

In placing at the head of our columns the name of this distinguished gentleman as the candidate for Governor, we not only do what is expected of us as members of the party which placed him in nomination, but at the same time give expression to the most heartfelt satisfaction personally at the result.

The selection of Mr. Buckalew was the spontaneous and unsolicited action of the sovereign people. From all parts of the Commonwealth came up a demand on the convention assembled at Reading for a nomination which should give a hope and earnest of reform in every branch of the government at Harrisburg; that should secure capacity, honesty, and independence in the administration; that should ignore rings and corporations as engines of political power and dispensers of political patronage, and restore to the people of the State the respect, consideration and protection they had and enjoyed in those days of political purity when Simon Snyder and Francis R. Shank honored the office of Chief Executive of the State.

The nomination was conspicuous by the absence of all the usual appliances and concomitants of such an event. Not even his own county was instructed for him, and but one county in the State, we believe, had taken that precaution; and yet when his name was mentioned in convention the instantaneous outburst of enthusiasm showed the beat of the popular heart. From the beginning of the balloting to the end of it there was a steady and increasing advance in the number of his supporters till, on the magic seventh, the triumph was complete.

Scarcely two weeks had gone by since Mr. Buckalew had consented to permit his name to be mentioned in connection with the office of Governor; but twenty years of a stainless public life had convinced the people that he was the man, perhaps the only man, who could and would stem the torrent of corruption which has so long disgraced the State; and his competitors gracefully gave way before the resistless will of the people who, irrespective of previous party ties, have everywhere spontaneously announced their determination to give him their support.

Mr. Buckalew has never been a violent partizan. It is not in his nature to be so. Though no man holds his opinions more tenaciously or upon a surer foundation of argument and reason, he always treats an opponent with respect and his opinions with consideration. The qualities of his head and his heart draw to him irresistibly the support of all honest and moderate men everywhere.

He is a lawyer of distinguished ability, a public speaker of great power and persuasiveness, a statesman of large experience, a politician of clean hands, of pure heart, of uncorrupt mind, of an age when the fire of youth has been tempered by observation and study, and will make a Governor of whom the State may be proud, and in whom the people can have the most unlimited confidence.

Sumner on Grant.

One of the greatest political sensations of the day, overtopping in interest even the Philadelphia Convention, is the recent masterly speech of Senator Sumner reviewing Grant's political career, and in which he asserts that Grant is more deserving of impeachmentthan Andrew Johnson. It cannot be said that Sumner is a Democrat; he is now and has always been our bitterest apponent, and his testimony is that of a Radical witness.

Even Forney, who has at last resolved to support Grant (but declines to aid Hartranft) in commenting on his speech alludes to him as "the great Senator who never does anything in haste" and as "my dear friend Sumner." He says:

"It would be folly to deny that his philippic is fierce and able. It would be weak to refuse to accept it as a bold and dangerous demonstration. As such I propose to discuss it. The readers of THE PRESS have not failed to notice that I have never concealed my attachment to Charles Sumner. I know him so well, and have known him so long,and I confide so entirely in his personal integrity, and so honor his acquirements and his patriotism, that I could not help repeated efforts to establish good relations between him and President Grant. I have never concealed my belief that his degradation from the chairmanship of the Senate Committee of Foreign Relations was a mistake, deeply aggravated by its subsequent organization, and by the removal of Mr. Motley. He constructed and led a great party, and hung to his convictions with the tenacity of a Cromwell, captivating the Senate and the country, and exterting, by his tremendous abilities, the warmest praise from his sternest foes."

He knew Grant, because he helped make him and, like a prudent parent, is now chastising a bad child. Nor can it be said that Sumner is a disappointed office seeker. He is an intense radical, and represented an intensely radical state, long before Grant voted for Buchanan, or declared that "if the war was to be for the liberation of the niggers he would resign." If Sumner, Greely, Fenton, Schurz, Trumbull, and McClure are not Republicans, both parties are very much deceived.

It will now more than ever be the duty of the Democrats at Baltimore to nominate a man of such ability and statesmanship, as to throw in deep contrast the man whom his own party charge with nepotism, corruption, and imbecility.

The contrast was made at Reading and the result will be the inevitable defeat of the Treasury Ring at Harrisburg, whose festering corruption is so notorious that it is not even denied.

Gen. O. O. Howard, of Freedman's Bureau notoriety was recently sent by the Government to pacify the Apache Indians. On his arrival in Arizona he requested Gen. Crook to temporarily suspend hostile operations against these Indians until he had an opportunity to test the efficacy of moral suasion. He now withdraws his previous request for a suspension of the campaign, and advises vigorous measures at once to punish the hostile Apaches, whom he designates as robbers and murderers, who will not be conciliated.

The adjournment question occupied the attention of both Houses of Congress on Saturday, and June 10 was fixed as the day of final adjournment.

Proceedings of the Democratic State Convention.

READING May 30th.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the convention was called to order by the Hon. William A. Wallace, chairman of the State Central Committee. He appointed John C. Barr of Pittsburg, H. H. Cummin of Lycoming, Herman Kretz of Elk, W. Hays Grier of Lancaster, and John O'Connor of Philadelphia, temporary secretaries,and Michael Sullivan of Philadelphia sergeant-at-arms. The roll of delegates was called, and the contests, substitutions, and changes recorded.

AN ADDRESS BY MR. WALLACE.

Mr. Wallace delivered a brief address on leaving the chair, in which he invoked concord and forbearance, and the exercise of judgment in the deliberations and in the selection of candidates and the preparation of a platform.

ELECTING THE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Hon. R. P. Brown, of Clarion, Hon. William Bigler, of Clearfield, and Hon. William Randall, of Schuylkill, were nominated for the office of temporary chairman.

Mr. Brown was elected, and upon taking the chair made a brief speech, in which he said the convention met under the most favorable circumstances, and that the harmony pervading the body augured success. Encouragement could be taken from the dissensions in the Republican party, growing out of the rule of corrupt rings and cabals. He urged the adoption of a good platform and a strong ticket. He returned thanks for the honor conferred, and at the close of his speech was cheered.

THE PROCEEDINGS UNDER WAY.

Committees on Resolutions, Organization, and Credentials were appointed.

A discussion ensued upon a resolution to refer all resolutions offered to the proper committee without reading. It was finally agreed that all resolutions relating to platform or Presidential candidates should be referred without delay or debate.

A resolution to appoint a committee of thirty-three to nominate candidates for delegates to the Constitutional Convention was considered at length.

A resolution was offered that when the convention adjourns, it adjourns to meet at three o'clock this afternoon, and that it then proceed to the nomination of judge of the Supreme Court, governor, congressmen at large, auditor general, electors at large, and six delegates at large to the democratic national convention.

Mr. Coffroth, of Somerset, moved that the number of delegates to the national convention be eight, with two provisional delegates, which was agreed to.

Mr. Brundage, of Luzerne, moved to strike out all excepting the words "Resolved, that when this convention adjourns it adjourns to meet at three o'clock this afternoon," which was agreed to.

Mr. Sloan, of Philadelphia, offered a resolution that a committee, consisting of one member from each senatorial district, be appointed on credentials.

Mr. Bunting, of Delaware, moved that the committee consist of seven members.

Mr. Moore, of Philadelphia, moved that the committee on contested seats consist of five persons, which was agreed to, and the chairman named the following: T. A. Sloan, Philadelphia; D. O. Barr, Allegheny; G. W. Skinner, Franklin; T. Chalfant, Montour and G. Search, Luzerne.

On motion adjourned until 3 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention was called to order at three o'clock.

On motion of Mr. Emery, of Lycoming, a committee of two were appointed to inform Mr. Clymer of his election, and escort him to the chair.

SPEECH OF HON. HIESTER CLYMER.

Hon. Heister Clymer, on being introduced to the convention, spoke as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I am profoundly grateful to you for this, and you will bear me witness, unsolicited honor. It adds another to the many debts of gratitude I owe to the democracy of Pennsylvania. From all parts of this Keystone state, from our rivers, which flow to the gulf, from the southern borders, from the northern line, men have come up here together to consult for the deliverance of the land. For twelve years, long, dreary, bitter years, the people of the whole land have suffered worse than an Egyptian bondage. Good men everywhere to-day are consulting together how there may be a deliverance from the gripe of military power, from this oppression and wrong, from suffering which we endure patiently, because we hope and believe that in the democracy and in the good men of the whole land there can yet be deliverance from them. We are about to appeal to the whole people of the whole state and to the whole country. I will not say how you are to appeal to them. It will not be my pleasure for one moment to indicate to this convention what they shall do. I can only ask that your convention shall be conducted in the interest of the right, and it will and must bear abundant fruits. I have nothing to say to you with reference to men, nothing with reference to him who should fill the high position of Governor. It is my pleasure to know every gentleman mentioned in connection with that office and to know them personally. Whoever he may be he will be immeasurably the peer of his opponent. You are about to begin your deliberations. You will allow me most reverently to humbly ask the divine blessing of him without whom and without whose guidance the labors of men are in vain. I have but one more word to add, that you will pardon any error I may make and believe it to be an error of the head and not of the heart. I am done, gentlemen, and am ready to receive any motions that the convention may have to offer.

The roll was called by the secretary, and the following resolution was offered.

Resolved, That a committee of thirty-three be appointed, one from each senatorial district, to report the names of fourteen persons at large as delegates to the constitutional convention, and ten persons as delegates to the democratic national convention.

The first part of the resolution was adopted.

The proposition to send ten delegates at large to the national convention was opposed by Mr. Lamberton, of Luzerne. He was not in favor of a committee choosing the delegates to the national convention. That power should be exercised by the convention itself.

The consideration of the second portion of the resolution was, on motion, postponed indefinitely.

Mr. Carrigan desired to ask of the chairman of the committee on resolutions what progress they were making in their duties.

Governor Bigler, chairman, said that the committee were not ready to report. The committee would hardly be ready to report before to-morrow morning.

A motion was made to proceed to nominate candidates for Governor. It was agreed to, and the following nominations were made: General G. W. Cass, Hon. C. R. Buckalew, D. M. Fox, J. E. Wharton, Colonel A. C. Noyes, W. P. Schell, H. B. Wright, Hon. William M'Clelland, General M'Calmont, Hon. E. L. Acker, John R. Reading and M. C. Trout.

Mr. Carrigan of Philadelphia, nominated Hon. Hiester Clymer. Mr. Clymer remarked—I am not insensible to the kindness of my friend from Philadelphia, but he knows me too well to think that his kindness would permit me to do anything that would jeopardise our victory. I am at the service of the democrats of this state (rather as a private), I am ready and willing to serve, and follow its marches, firmly believing and earnestly praying for a great and glorious victory. You will allow me to decide the motion nominating me to be out of order. Let this convention nominate a man who will lead us on to victory.

On motion of Mr. Randall the nominations were closed. Messrs. Acker and Reading were withdrawn.

The convention then proceeded to balloting with the following result.

READING, May. 31.

The convention met at ten o'clock.

Mr. Buckalew was introduced to the convention by the Hon. Heister Clymer and delivered a speech which will be found elsewhere.

Mr. Clymer said, at the close of Mr. Buckalew's address: "May a kind Providence guard and keep him! May the good people sustain and support him! And may honest men everywhere and of every political creed rejoice that the hour has struck when in him, by him and through him imbecility and corruption is to be banished from the executive and legislative departments of this commonwealth."

Mr. Coffroth moved that the convention proceed with the nomination for auditor general, which was agreed to, and the following nominations were made.

On motion, balloting was commenced, with the following result:

FIRST BALLOT.

Mr. Hartley having received a majority of all the votes, he was duly announced as nominated.

On motion of Mr. Monaghan, of Chester, the nomination of Mr. Hartley was made unanimous.

General Davis, of Bucks, made a few remarks, in which he pronounced the success of the party a certainty.

Mr. William Hartley, the candidate for auditor general, was introduced to the convention and spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the convention and fellow citizens, I have no language to express to you the feelings of my heart, for the honor which you have conferred upon me, knowing that as a politician, as a party man it is unmerited and though I have lived forty years I have never held an office of trust or emolument. No matter what sins I may be guilty of I do not think that I have thought more highly of myself than I should have thought, and it is a great gratification to me to-day to know that my friends and neighbors have thought better of me than I have of myself. I stand before you without any prepared speech. I expected after my name was used in connection with this office a complimentary vote. A few weeks ago I never dreamed of being presented to the people of Pennsylvania by this convention for so honorable a position. As you have seen fit in your wisdom, or folly, to place me before the people of this state, I will endeavor with the help of God to pursue the same course of life, guided by the same rules that I have ever been guided by and I will cause you no shame. I hope to become better acquainted with you and if the people of this great commonwealth see proper to make me guardian of their treasury, I will endeavor to figure up the accounts by the old rules that were taught me in the old school arithmetics. I have never been in the Pennsylvania legislature. I have endeavored to attend to my own business. I do not mean to cast any reflections upon the members of the legislature who have followed the course of right and honesty. I want you to understand that I come fresh from the people. My speech is over. I thank you.

Mr. Coffroth moved that the convention proceed to nominations of three delegates for Congressmen at large. The nominations were as follows:

Mr. Josephs, of Philadelphia, nominated R. Vaux, of Philadelphia; Mr. Lare nominated J. H. Hopkins, of Allegheny; Mr. Allen nominated Selden Marvin, of Erie; Mr. Miller nominated R. L. Johnson, of Cambria; Mr. Bigler nominated J. H. Brinton, of Chester; Mr. Emery nominated G. W. Skinner, of Franklin; Mr. Monaghan nominated C. E. M'Laughlin, of Cumberland; Mr. Lamberton nominated H. B. Wright, of Luzerne.

Ballots were entered into with the following result:

The name of Mr. Brinton was withdrawn before the second ballot was ended, and a number of delegates, before the final announcement was made, changed their votes.

On the second ballot Mr. Wright was nominated, and on motion of Captain Skinner the nominations were made unanimous.

Col. Wright and Mr. Hopkins were introduced and made a few remarks, thanking the convention for the honor conferred.

The convention adjourned shortly after one o'clock, until two P. M.

THE PLATFORM.

Hon. William Bigler, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, presented the following report:

Resolved, That the Democratic party while in the future as in the past, firmly upholding the Constitution of the United States as the foundation and limitation of the powers of the General Government, and the safe shield of the liberties of the people, demands for the citizen the largest freedom consistent with public order, and for every State the right of self-government; that to uphold the former and protect the latter, the Democracy of Pennsylvania can find no better platform upon which to stand than the great leading principles enunciated in the inaugural address of President Jefferson, and the farewell address of the immortal Jackson; upon these two great State papers we plant ourselves, and enter the contest for 1872.

Resolved, That abused as the public confidence has been by a long period of official mismanagement, waste, and fraud, this convention invites the co-operation of all citizens of the Commonwealth in the earnest effort which the great constituency it represents is about to make to remove from our State administration every taint of political corruption. The interest of every Pennsylvanian is directly and vitally concerned in the eradication of all unjust usages and practices by which individual fortunes may be created at public cost, and the attempt to do this can be made certainly successful by the union of upright and fair-minded men of all parties, and by sustaining candidates of unquestioned abilities and unspotted reputations.

Resolved, That the grant by the Radical Legislature of this State of numerous charters creating such corporations as the "South Improvement Company," "Continental Improvement Company," and others of similar character, is unjust to the interests of trade, is dangerous to the rights and liberties of the people, and as such meets with our unqualified condemnation.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Resolutions of thanks to Mr. Mishler, proprietor of the hall, and others were then passed, and the convention adjourned sine die.

The Asiatic cholera has come at last. The French gunboat Terror, with forty cases of the cholera on board, arrived at New York last week, and was immediately ordered to the open ocean. The scourge has appeared in Havana in a peculiarly virulent form, being complicated with yellow-fever.

The Congressional conference committee on the Tariff and Tax bill have agreed on their report. They place whiskey at 70 cents, which covers everything except the 10 cent stamp on the barrel for the rectifier, and fix a uniform tax of 20 cents on tobacco.

Address of Mr. Buckalew to the Reading Convention, upon accepting the nomination for Governor.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I appear this morning in your presence in pursuance of the request of the committee which waited upon me, to tender to you, and through you to, I hope, a majority of the people of this State, my sincere, heartfelt, earnest thanks for the great honor which has been done me in nominating me as the Democratic candidate for Governor of this Commonwealth. [Cheers.]

This nomination so tendered was not solicited by me. It came, if I understand the facts correctly, as the legitimate outgrowth of public opinion in this State; not so much because of any general conviction of preeminent ability in the individual who has been selected, not because of any shining or distinguished character which has been established by him, but because the people throughout this Commonwealth, having had an opportunity for nearly a quarter of a century of observing his course and conduct in public position, have attained to the belief that, whatever may be said of your candidate, he is neither to be seduced nor intimidated in the performance of public duty; and that judging by the past, it is likely in the future, when the interests of a class or a clique are upon the one hand, and the interests of the people upon the other, he will stand firmly with that great mass of humanity from which he sprang and with which he sympathizes in every fibre of his being. [Renewed applause.]

Gentlemen, of this action taken by you I speak impersonally. This action taken by you will be sanctioned and ratified for no low or mere personal objects, but from patriotic motives. With honest convictions we go forward into the contest assured that its result will be triumph. [Cheers.] And what do we desire? Not merely that certain men representing us shall hold public office; not that mere gratification of party passions shall come to us, but that this Government of ours shall be honest and pure, fair and equal, in its action with regard to all our people, and above all, at this juncture, that those reforms which are necessary in the government of our State, as well as in the government of the United States, shall be secured to the people by all the agencies appropriate and adequate to their attainment.

The people of this State have determined that a Constitutional Convention fairly selected, and representing all the people of the State, shall be convened the present year, and that, so far as it is necessary to meet the exigencies of the times by fundamental changes, those changes shall be secured. But we know that something more than this is necessary; that constitutional provisions must be general and vague in character at least to a certain extent, and that for the application and enforcement of sound principles of government we must have reliable men in public office. An old political motto and a favorite one, which you have often heard, is this, "Principles and not men." I believe the Latin equivalent for this expression was placed by Mr. Madison upon his carriage, so that he should be constantly reminded of the truth which was supposed to be contained in it. Well now, gentlemen, I think under the experience we have had in recent times we should amend this motto; we should say now, "Principles, and men to support them." Look to your Government in the State, look to your Government at Washington, and is it not manifest that although good principles are written in your fundamental laws, and although the people are everywhere desirous that they shall be applied, yet there is failure because the agents for their application are unfaithful or incompetent? Be it now our mission in this year of initial reform, 1872, be it now our mission to go forward in the selection of men who will apply American principles in American Government. [Great cheering.]

Gentlemen, my ideas of the duties of the Governor of the Commonwealth are, I suppose, somewhat peculiar. My idea is that he is a magistrate, as he is called—that in his high, his important office, I mean in the actual discharge of its duties, he is not to know that a party has elected him. [Tremendous applause.] He is to be the magistrate of the entire people of the Commonwealth. He is not to let loose a criminal from your penitentiaries because political favorites demand his release [applause] nor is he in any manner to prostitute those powers which were created for the common advantage, to the purposes or interests of any limited number or of a few. Gentlemen, I believe there is a disposition at this time in our Commonwealth to get a little beyond and outside of that circle of intense party passion which raged over this country during the war and the first years after the conclusion of the war. Our people are beginning to understand that there are many matters, and those of the greatest significance, upon which gentlemen of intelligence and liberal opinion can heartily unite to subserve and promote those purposes for which political society was organized. Here are questions relating to the harmony of the different parts of the Union, ordinarily expressed by general amnesty and oblivion of the past. Here are questions of finance and taxation, in which there are common interests and upon which parties are not sharply divided, and many others now in view. I shall not occupy your time upon those. [Cries of "Go on!" and applause.] Now, in view of the general disposition to have reform introduced into our State and into our National Governments, we are entitled, when we set up candidates for whom and around whom public confidence can gather, we are entitled to appeal to men of all parties and shades of opinion to go with us, and to establish a new departure which shall be one of purity, energy, faithfulness, integrity, and justice in government. [Great cheers.]

It is a source of deep satisfaction to me to know that at the end of this amicable controversy upon the question of the selection of a candidate for Governor, the utmost good feeling prevails, and that other gentlemen who were named or proposed for nomination for this office, and their friends, are now cordially united and acquiescent in the result which the convention has reached. All of those candidates for nomination are known to the people of this State as men of high character and merit. I speak of them kindly, not from motives of policy, but sincerely and truly. I respect them and respect their friends who stood by them and presented their names for consideration in this convention, and now what I desire is that each of them and their friends, the result having been reached, will stand by me in this contest, upholding my feeble hands, and, like a band of brothers joined, we shall proceed forward to victory. [Wild applause.] Allow me one additional remark in this connection. There has been too much disposition in our great Commonwealth among her public men to push personal rivalry a little too far—a little beyond the limit of what was becoming or expedient.

The result has been that our State has been comparatively dwarfed in this great Union of ours. Other States have been more potential in the Federal Government, and have had more influence upon its action. New York, Virginia, and other States, although no more patriotic, no more deserving, have had a little more eminence and distinction in the Federal Union than our noble and magnificent State. It has been our own fault, and the remedy is in our own hands. Let gentlemen in our State who are favored with public approval, who are placed in public station, let them cultivate magnanimity and good will with each other, and when ability rises in our State let us cherish and encourage it. When a man appears to rise a little above the ordinary level, and bids fair to attain public distinction, instead of pulling him down let us support him, and bid him God-speed. Let us have a State hope and a State pride, and cultivate our own men, and thus assist directly and indirectly to give to our State that position which belongs to her in this American Union. I hail the proceedings and the results of this convention, and the spirit which now animates all the gentlemen concerned in it, as an omen of good for the future in this respect, that we will cherish and cultivate that spirit of harmony and good will among our representative men which will promote the interests, influence, and character of the State.

Gentlemen, I know most of you are anxious to conclude your duties here and return to your homes. It was not my intention, on appearing before you, to make an elaborate or prolonged address. During the course of the canvass, opportunities will be afforded me of meeting my fellow-citizens in different parts of the State under circumstances more auspicious and convenient for the discussion of public matters. I shall endeavor to perform my duty in this canvass, and, in conclusion, all I have to say to you is that you shall perform yours.

REMARKS OF MR. CLYMER.

Mr Clymer, the President of the Convention, then said:

May a kind Providence guard and keep him, may the good people sustain and support him, and may honest men everywhere and of every political creed rejoice that the hour has struck when in him, by him, and through him, imbecility and corruption are to be banished from the executive and legislative departments of the Commonwealth.

THE adjourned court convened to try the Bloomsburg contested election case, on Saturday last, was adjourned to June 17th.

THE Lock Haven Republican says: "If we do not have a flood, all the mills will be obliged to shut down by the first of July."

THURSDAY of last week was Decoration day and was pretty generally celebrated throughout the country, though not so universally as heretofore. Bloomsburg took no note of the anniversary. Why was this thus?

AN unknown man committed suicide in Wilkes Barre last week by deliberately walking into the river and drowning himself. This is a new plan, most suicides preferring deep water and a plunge headlong.

STRAWBERRIES and green peas have made their appearance in our markets. The prices are a trifle steep just at present but will tone down in time. The berries, are in capital order firm and sound. Unless the signs are deceptive there will be a large crop this year.

The Supreme Court, now in session at Harrisburg, have expressed a determination to hear the Local Option case in Philadelphia on the first of July, if counsel of both sides are ready.

TEMPERATURE of May 1872 at Bloomsburg, Pa., result of three daily observations Maximum 93° on the 10th; Minimum 42° on the 5th and 14th, in the morning; average of the month 63½°. H. Z.

THE Scranton daily Republican concedes the nomination of Buckalew and Thompson to be the strongest ticket the Democrats could have made, and intimates that the prospect for the success of the Republican State ticket is not encouraging.

THE Independent Order of Good Templars will have a meeting in their hall with open doors, Tuesday evening June 11th to discuss the relation of the church to the temperance cause. All are invited to attend and take part in the discussion.

WE learn that Mr. J. W. Alder who recently resigned his position as Asst. Supt. of the Catawissa R. R. has been appointed Paymaster of the same road, taking the place of Mr. Riter who has been made Treasurer.

MESSRS. MILLER AND DAVIS of this town recently caught in a net in the river a nondescript, a species of lizard apparently, measuring some eighteen inches in length. The creature has a very flat head, a large mouth and uncommonly sharp teeth.

PROF. JAMES C. BROWN late of the Normal School will deliver the Oration at the Reunion of the Gamma Epsilon Society of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary Wednesday afternoon of June 19th.

The same body has secured Rev. J. P. Newman D. D. Chaplain of the U. S Senate to deliver a Literary address in the evening in the Academy of Music.

JACK THOMPSON again came to grief on Monday evening from excessive application to "the cup which cheers but also inebriates" and was provided with lodgings by Constable Woodward in the Lock-up. Thompson's visits to Bloomsburg always seem to result disastrously and he would gratify the citizens of the town and insure his own comfort by staying away; "A consummation devoutly to be wished."

OUR exchanges are filled with reports of persons who were robbed by pickpockets whilst attending Barnum's show. These light-fingered gentry were in Danville while the show was there, but we have heard of no one from this county who was unfortunate enough to lose money or valuables. An attempt was made, we are informed, to steal the watch of E. H. Baldy Jr. of Danville, but he discovered the rogue in time to prevent the abstraction of the time-piece, although the chain had been cut in two.

Now that our State ticket is made up and the campaign fairly opened we urge upon the Democrats of the County the expediency of forming Clubs in the various townships, preserving thereby a compact organization and ensuring attendance at the polls next fall. Our farmers can certainly spare an evening now and then for interchange of political views and opinions and the result of such talks will undoubtedly be the keeping alive of interest and the production of a full vote in October. We trust most earnestly that our readers may give heed to our advice.

A YOUNG man named Frank Beaver came to his death last week near Numedia, this County, in a most sudden and singular manner, by a fall from his horse. He had ridden the horse to a field for the purpose of getting some chains, which, having obtained, he hung over his shoulders. On his way home he stopped to speak to some acquaintances and, when ready to start again, spoke sharply to his horse who sprang forward suddenly unseating his rider. Beaver however reached home, looked after the horse and went into the house, and died in a few moments. The doctor who was summoned stated the cause of his death to be a ruptured blood vessel. Beaver was the grandson of Ludwig Thiele and was well known in the community where he resided.

The Republican contains an article, this week, on Mr. Buckalew, which is a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end. No such words as are imputed to Mr. Buckalew were ever spoken by him, as the editor of the Republican very well knows, or might have known if he had taken the trouble to read the speech as reported.

IN washing window or other glass never use soap unless it can be thoroughly rinsed off; wash off the dirt with warm water; after the glass is dry rub a little paste of whiting and water in the centre of each pane. With another cloth rinse over the glass, then rub it with a dry cloth till it shines like crystal.

CHEAP BLANKETS.—Newspapers over or under the bed-spread will keep the sleeper as warm as an additional pair of blankets, and they are an excellent protection where there are no blankets. The larger the sheet of course the better, and it might be best to stitch them to the coverlet. These uses of an article so abundant should be generally known to the poor, who are apt to suffer in cold weather.

ON Monday evening last Mr. David Lowenberg flung to the breeze a handsome flag from the staff surmounting his new building. The flag was the gift of a few of Mr. Lowenberg's many friends and was presented as a mark of appreciation of the manly and generous qualities which have long distinguished him both as a public man and a private citizen. The nation's ensign could not float over a more estimable and useful member of society.

THE Friendship Fire Co. of this town held a Festival last week and netted thereat the sum of $113.66. A silver headed cane was voted for and William Shipman was the fortunate winner he receiving 167 votes and William Webb receiving 137. There was a large attendance at the Festival during the three evenings of its continuance and much satisfaction was expressed at the good management which characterized the occasion.

PASS HIM ROUND.—The Mayville Sentinel says a soundrel, calling himself Ira Brown, from Auburn, N. Y., is traveling around the country with a patent cut bar for a mower and reaper. He appoints agents in the townships, and takes contracts with them, which he cuts in two, making a note of them. The farmers of this section want to keep their eyes opened against such swindlers. They are liable to receive a visit from some of them any day.

MR. BUCKALEW AT HOME.—Serenade to our next Governor.—The unpropitious weather of Saturday last prevented the citizens of Bloomsburg from tendering to Mr. Buckalew their congratulations, thus expressing their approval of the action of the Reading Convention in nominating so able and honest a citizen for the highest office in the State Government. Monday evening, however, proved fair and at about 8 o'clock a large number of our townsmen of both parties, the Friendship Fire Company and Monroe's Band, assembled near the Court House and marched to the residence of Mr. Buckalew. After several well executed pieces by the Band, there were repeated calls for Mr. Buckalew, in response to which he came forward and made a short but earnest speech. He reviewed briefly the proceedings at the Convention which terminated in his nomination; spoke of the harmony which prevailed; the absence of petty intriguing and wire pulling and the hearty endorsement of the ticket as formed. He expressed his gratitude to the people of the county for the steady and unwavering support which they had extended to him for so many years. The speech was such a one as a man would make to the friends and neighbors who had known him for years and amongst whom he had spent his life. It was simple, unaffected, manly and sincere, and his hearers received it as such.

Col. Freeze followed Mr. Buckalew and gave a more extended account of the Convention. Capt. Brockway spoke a few moments as to the Republican support which would be extended to our nominee this fall and predicted a glorious victory.

Now let the people of Columbia county see to it that the majority this fall is greater than ever before. Mr. Buckalew can be voted for by members of both parties who prefer honesty and ability to rottenness and corruption. Mark the contrast: Buckalew—Hartranft.

RUNAWAYS.—A horse belonging to Norman Pursel, ran away on Monday afternoon on Market Street near the railroad and in his course ran over a tree in front of Mr. Jno. A. Funston's residence, and also one in front of Mr. Wm. Peacock's on Fifth Street. The frightened animal continued his way through Fifth to East Street and then, like a tax payer, took the pavement and ran to the Forks Hotel where he was stopped not greatly injured. The truck wagon to which he was attached was badly dislocated. Two young men were in the wagon and were thrown out but escaped with a few bruises.

On Tuesday last the three horse team of Willian Beck of Brier Creek township was waiting at Lime Ridge for a load of lime when they became frightened and dashed off furiously. A boy who was standing by the heads of the horses, endeavored to hold them, but was dragged some distance and finally thrown to the ground the wagon passing over him. He followed the horses until he fell from exhaustion and was carried home. His injuries are serious. One of the horses in making a short turn in the road was thrown violently against a post and killed.

A son of Hiram Hess was driving a three horse team near Light Street on Tuesday last when the horses took fright and after breaking the pole of the wagon, ran away dragging Mr. Hess several rods, cutting and bruising him severely. The horses ran into Light Street and were stopped at Kelchner's Mill, not much hurt.

We have to chronicle yet another runaway. As a gentleman, whose name we have not learned accompanied by two ladies was driving near the Narrows between Rupert and Catawissa, his horse took fright at a passing train and ran off, throwing the occupants of the buggy to the ground and bruising them quite seriously. The horse ran to the bridge, then turned and crossed the track in the rear of the train and fell exhausted.

SIXTEEN YEARS OF SUCCESS.—In 1856 the now famous MUSTANG LINIMENT was first made known to the public by an extensive system of advertising. From that time to the present, its demand for it has been a steadily increasing, until it has taken the lead of all exhaustions, lotions, ointments, and other external remedies, imported or domestic, ever introduced into the American market. In the most celebrated racing and trotting stables, in the establishments of stage and coal car companies, and in the stables of private gentlemen, it is the only recognized cure for such diseases of the horse as require outward treatment. Nor is it less valuable as a household application for some of the most distressing complaints to which men is subject. Rheumatism, stiffness of the joints, neuralgia, sore throat, tumors, sores, scratches, solidage yield to its pain-subduing, counter-irritant properties, and burns, scalds and cuts are healed with incredible rapidity under its operation.

Interest on the Pacific R. R. bonds, 7 3-10 per cent payable in gold, will be paid by the Bloomsburg Banking Co. on and after July 1st.

Sewing Machine Sales for 1871.

There is a circumstance connected with the late disastrous fire at Chicago which deserves special mention, as expressive of the comparative estimation in which the various Sewing Machines now in use in this country are held by the Western people. It is stated in the report of the Special Relief Committee of that city, as published in the Chicago Tribune of March 9th of the present year, that the whole number of Sewing Machines for which orders have been issued to the date of the report is 2,944, on which the committee have paid the sum of $71,439.89. Of these the Singer Manufacturing Company supplied 2,427 Wheeler & Wilson, 225; Howe, 127; Grover & Baker, 44; Wilcox & Gibbs, 30; Florence, 18; Finkle & Lyon, 20, Blees, 17; Ætna, 11; Wilson, 5; Western Empire, 2; Manhattan, 2; Davis, 2; Eliptic, 1; Gold Medal, 1; and American Buttonhole, 2.

This report indicates how well the Singer Sewing Machine maintains its early and well-earned popularity. It may be regarded as one of the pioneers in the Sewing Machine manufacture, which is one of the most remarkable events in the progress of mechanical invention, and one of the most striking features of modern productive industry. Additional evidence, however, is given of the popularity of the Singer "New Family Sewing Machine, by the annual returns made by the various companies and sworn to by them in obtaining licenses in 1871, from the owners of the Sewing Machine patents.

Those returns show that the Singer Manufacturing Company sold during the year, 181,260 machines; the Wheeler & Wilson Company, 128,526; Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Company, 50,838; Weed Sewing Machine Company, 39,605; Howe Machine Company (January 1st to July 1st) 34,010; Wilcox & Gibbs, 30,127; Wilson Sewing Machine Company, 21,153; American B. H. O. & S. M. Company, 20,121; Original Howe Sewing Machine Company, 20,051; Florence S. M. Co., 11,568; Domestic S. M. Co., 10,297; Finkle, Lyon & Co., 7,639; Ætna S. M. Co., 4,720; Blees S. M. Co., 4,557; Eliptic S. M. Co., 4,525; Empire S. M. Co., 2,965; Parham S. M. Co., 2,056; Bartman & Fanton S. M. Co., 1,001; Bartlet S. M. Co., 614; J. G. Falsom, 580 McKay's S. M. Association, 218; C. F. Tompson, 147; and the Union Buttonhole machine, 124; thus making the sales of the Singer machines exceed those of all others, 52,000.—New York Sunday News.

There is no large City in the union where Sewing Machines are so well understood or as many attachments made as in Chicago, which proves beyond all doubt that if the real merits of Singers New Family Machines were generally known, few others could be sold.

A PITIFUL CONDITION.—It is a sad thing to pass through the valley of life. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease; they suffer no positive pain; but they have no relish for eating with an afflicting mental or sensuous pleasure. In nine cases out of ten this state of inanimate and torpor arises from the unwise consumption of stimulants, which the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular estimulation of the food, every organ is starved, every function is impaired. Now, what does common sense suggest under these circumstances of depression? The system needs nursing and stimulating, not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterward into a more pitiable condition than ever as it surely would do if an ordinary alcoholic stimulant were resorted to, but radically and permanently.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not waste time by administering tonics, nervines, and bracers, but brace up the system by recuperating the fountain head of physical strength and energy, the great organ upon which all other organs depend for their nature and support.

By the time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be created, and with appetite the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complete—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and bone, and nerves and brain flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been imperfectly nourished.

Important Testimony!

The following letters are among the many we are constantly receiving from persons who have been cured by

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup,
Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic,
AND
Schenck's Mandrake Pills.

Pennsgrove, Salem County, New Jersey.
FEBRUARY 27, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, M. D., corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia:

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in adding my testimony to that of the many others who have been cured by the efficacy of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

Consumption has been hereditary with my family, most of its members having died or it at early ages. My mother died three months after the age of 31, one brother at 27, and my sister at 21.

I was, when about 31 years, seized with liver complaint, which rapidly developed into Pulmonary Consumption. I was compelled to relinquish my employment (that of a blacksmith.)

I consulted skillful and eminent physicians, and tried many patent nostrums, but without success, so that my friends were sure that there was no hope of my recovery, for I was reduced from 170 pounds to 104, and was not able to do anything without assistance.

By what I now look upon as a Providential Inspiration, I was induced to try your valuable medicines, and place myself under your treatment, and so rapid and thorough was my recovery, that it seemed as though some superhuman power and at work, and to-day I am as well as at any time during my life. I weigh 182 pounds, am 58 years old, and for some time have been regularly attending to my business, building fair to live to a good old age.

I am thankful to you beyond expression for having placed me in a position wherein I am a perfect instead of a burden to my family.

Your Mandrake Pills are the only medicine I ever use now. I think they are the best in the world.

I can refer you to hundreds of my neighbors who will verify all I have written, and any information any of my fellow citizens may desire will be freely and gladly given, upon receipt of stamp, by Yours, etc. JOHN G. HEWITT.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 19, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, N. E. cor. Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia:

Dear Sir—Please forward, per first steamer, six bottles Sea Weed Tonic and twelve bottles Pulmonic Syrup.

Your medicines are of such value that I cannot be without them in my household, and in fact no family should be without them.

I have given them to my wife, and gladly declare them to be even better than you claim.

Very respectfully yours, &c.
W. A. WHITEHURST.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK,

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in awarding to you this unsolicited tribute to the wonderful cure your Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic produced. My throat and bronchial tubes were so highly inflamed that it was almost impossible for me to swallow my food.

I am on a visit to my uncle, Mr. Charles Johnson, No. 912 Federal street, who says your medicines raised him from almost death after all other means had failed, and he having, therefore, full confidence in the virtue of your remedies, strongly recommended me to try them. I did so, and in one week from the time I commenced taking them my throat underwent a very great change for the better, so that I could eat my meals without any difficulty or pain. I can scarcely find words to express my gratitude for the early relief your invaluable medicines produced upon me, and I deem it but an act of gratitude to give you the acknowledgement of my appreciation. Yours respectfully,
RACHEL M. JACOBS.

No. 46 West Thirty-third street, New York.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
and MANDRAKE PILLS.

These are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Dr. Schenck has been in constant practice over thirty years continually examining lungs, and knows his medicines. If properly taken, will cure Consumption. His Mandrake Pills cleanse the liver and stomach; his Sea Weed Tonic dissolves the food, stimulates the coating of the stomach, and makes it digest. His Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter, and relieves throws it off without any exertion.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 per half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box.

THE BAR ROOM REMEDY for weakness of the stomach is a dose of Hom Bitters. They are sacharated with Fusel Oil, a deadly element, which is rendered more active by the pungent astringents with which it is combined. If your stomach is weak, or your liver or bowels disordered, use, sparingly, Hom Bitters and regenerate them with VINEGAR BITTERS, a pure VEGETABLE STOMACHIC, CORRECTIVE AND APERIENT, free from alcohol, and capable of infusing new vitality into your exhausted and disordered system. n22-4w

CASTORIA.—a substitute for Castor Oil—a family physic which is pleasant to take and does not distress or gripe, but is sure to operate when all other remedies have failed. It is a purely vegetable preparation, containing neither Minerals, Morphine nor Alcohol, the result of fifteen years experimenting by Doctor Samuel Pitcher. It is perfectly harmless and far more effective than Pills, Powder Syrups or Castor Oil. By combining the system it produces natural sleep, and is patronized by Physicians, Nurses, Clergymen, &c. Flatulency and Derangements of the Liver. No family can afford to be without this article. It costs but 7 cents—ask your druggist to get it for you, and he will always keep it. 4w

Agricultural.

Seed Potatoes.

It is the practice of the majority of our potato growers to use for seed that portion of their crop which is too small for marketing, and the effect of this when long continued, on the yield, healthfulness and quality of the crop, is a question worthy of careful consideration. In the selection of seed the potato crop has received different treatment from any of our standard crops. As a rule farmers use the best of their grain to sow; they are careful to procure that which is plump and fully matured, but the seed potatoes are those which are too small for market, and which, from the manner of growth, necessarily are not as fully ripe, and are devoid of that perfection which exists in the larger tubers. There is another fact to be considered, which is that no one of our standard farm crops has had so many varieties deteriorated, run out, discarded, as the potato. If we could not originate new varieties every few years, having a larger stock of native vigor, the demand for this article of food could not be met.—Is this deterioriation the result of the practice of using the small potatoes for seed?

The only way to definitely answer this question is by long continued experiment. The varieties which have even partially deteriorated are not proper subjects for such trial, but rather some of the newer ones which are yet in their full vigor. As private persons are not likely to undertake and carry out such an experiment, its importance should commend it to the agricultural school where experimental grounds are maintained. Take the Early Rose, for instance, or Harrison, or Peerless, and plant one plot with seed selected from the most perfect tubers, and another with that of the small-sized ones. Propagate from the same stocks, and at the end of a dozen or twenty years the question whether small potatoes are as good for seed as the larger and riper might be intelligently answered. Experiments seem to show that potato seed is surer to germinate when it contains the least percentage of starch—a condition attaching to immature tubers, or those grown on new land, or that which is wet and cool.

To Fatten a Horse.

A. D. W. asks to be informed of the best way to fatten a horse. He has a horse that devours a great quantity of food, but continues poor. Wants to know about grooming him and keeping his coat in a healthy condition. Evidently the animal is unhealthy; his digestive organs are out of order, and the food taken is not properly assimilated. Hence is poor and the coat looks rough. It is an indication of palsy of the stomach, and the bowels should be opened the first thing. To accomplish this a cathartic, made of one ounce of Barbadoes, two drachms of pulverized gentian root, 1 drachm pulverized ginger, all mixed with molasses, should be given. Give no food for forty-eight hours; a little water occasionally. Twelve hours after giving the cathartic, give one scruple of calomel on the tongue, and repeat it once in twelve hours for two or three days. Feed lightly, good nutritious food. Groom the animal thoroughly daily.—Ex.

POTASH AS A FERTILIZER.—Potash forms one of the most essential constituents of a fertile soil, and one of the most important of all the fertilizing agents within reach of the agriculturist. In any plant it constitutes more than one-half of the ash, and in most at least one third. It neutralizes acids in the soil and in the same manner as lime, but when it is desired to simply effect these last mentioned objects, the latter should be used, as being cheaper, and potash, generally available in the form of ashes, should be applied as a manure, using the word in its strictest sense, to indicate a substance that contributes directly to the building up the structure of the plants. But considerable care should be exercised in the use of ashes; and they should never, as is the practice with some in manuring corn in the hill, be mixed with guano or the refuse of the hen-roost, inasmuch as the first rain that dissolves them will cause the potash to displace the ammonia in the same manner that lime displaces it from barn-yard manure and similar manures as we have just mentioned.—Farmers Journal.

THE CHECK-REIN.—There can be no doubt in the matter that a check-rein upon a draught horse is calculated to worry and injure the animal more than all the ordinary labor which he is required to perform. If a man has a heavy load to push or draw, he lowers his head by bending forward, and throws the weight of his body against it, so as to propel the load—so does the horse, under similar circumstances, if permitted. If the man's head were tied to a belt around his body so that he could not bend forward, he would lose the advantage of his weight, and could only push with his muscles,—so also with the horse. If the man's head were thus kept in a perpendicular position, he could not so readily see where to step, and would be more apt to stumble,—so also with the horse. No one in the saddle would thus tie up the head of his horse, and no one would expect a horse thus tied up to win a race.

Breaking up of Grass Lands.

A piece of grass land that will cut two tons of hay per acre, or which will furnish an equivalent in pasture, cannot profitably be broken up, especially if the land is inclined to be rough or wet. Many fields which are now covered with coarse herbage, might by draining and manuring become covered with valuable and nutritious grasses, and where labor is scarce this course is far preferable to putting such land under the plough. Draining is often all that is needed to produce the change; sometimes a judicious application of artificial manures might be profitably used.

Protecting Corn Fields against Birds.

An agricultural writer says that the crow never eats hard corn, and that a little corn, well soaked in water, and scattered in different parts of the field, will satisfy the crow and prevent him from committing any depredations upon the planted corn. Farmers, try the experiment.

Young Folks.

Indian Fable of the Origin of Fire.

Cahrocs now had food enough, but they had no fire to cook it with. Far away toward the rising sun, somewhere in a land where no Cahroc had ever seen, Chareya had made fire and hidden it in a casket, which he gave to two old hags to keep, lest some Cahroc should steal it. So now the Coyote again befriended the Cahrocs, promising to bring them some fire.

He went out and got together a great company of animals, one of every kind, from the cougar down to the frog. These he stationed in a line along the road, from the home of the Cahrocs to the far distant land where the fire was, the weakest animal nearest home, and the strongest nearest the fire. Then he took an Indian with him and hid him under a hill, and went to the cabin of the hags who kept the fire, and rapped on the door. One of them came out, and he said "Good evening;" and they replied, "Good evening." Then he said, "It's a pretty cold night; can you let me sit by your fire?" And they said, "Yes; come in." So he went in and stretched himself out before the fire, and reached out his snout towards the blaze, and sniffed the heat, and felt very snug and comfortable. Finally, he stretched his nose out along his fore-paws and pretended to go to sleep, though he kept the corner of one eye open, watching the old hags. But they never slept, day or night, and he spent the whole night watching and thinking to no purpose.

So next morning he went out and told the Indian whom he had hidden under the hill that he must make an attack on the hags' cabin, as if he were about to steal some fire while (the coyote) was in it. He then went back and asked the hags to admit him again, which they did, as they did not think a coyote could steal any fire. He stood close by the casket of fire, and when the Indian made a rush on the cabin, and the hags dashed out after him at the door, the coyote seized a brand in his teeth and ran out at the other. He almost flew over the ground; but the hags saw the sparks flying and gave chase, and gained on him fast. But by the time he was out of breath he reached the cougar, who took the brand and ran with it to the bear, and so on, each animal barely having time to give it to the next before the hags came up.

The next to the last in the line was the ground squirrel. He took the brand and ran so fast with it that his tail got afire and he curled it up over his back, and so burned the black spot we see to this day just behind his fore-shoulders. Last of all was the frog; but he, poor brute! could not run at all; so he opened his mouth wide, and the squirrel chucked the fire into it and he swallowed it down with a gulp. Then he turned and gave a great jump; but the hags were so close in pursuit that one of them seized him by the tail (he was a tadpole then) and tweaked it off, and that is the reason that frogs have no tails to this day. He swam under water a long distance—as long as he could hold his breath—then came up and spit out the fire into a log of drift wood, and there it has stayed safe ever since; so that when an Indian rubs two pieces of wood together the fire comes forth.

A Sea Monster in the Hudson.

The other day some shad fishermen pulled up one of their nets in the North river, near Weehawken, and found within it a monster devil-fish, which is thus described: The monster, including his tail, measured nearly five feet in length; its jaws are armed with rows of teeth running down into its gullet; its horny head is one-third as large as its body; its mouth is immense, and when its jaws are extended the fish could easily swallow a good sized infant. The back and head is dirty black, while the belly is a dirty yellow color. Two immense flops, not unlike, in color, size and appearance, the ears of an elphant, hang from the sides of the head. The body is irregularly shaped, terminating in a tail similar to that of a lion, a web-like fin forming the tuft. Several fins, shaped like the human hand, the five fingers distinctly marked, project from the body. Over the eyes are a couple of feelers a foot long. He will bury himself partially in the sediment at the bottom of the river, and lifting these over his mouth set them in motion. They attract fish, which he draws between his jaws. A four pound fish was found in his maw when captured.

ANECDOTE OF A DOG.—A narrow log lay as a bridge over a deep ravine. From the opposite ends of the log, at the same moment, there started to cross it a big Newfoundland dog and a little Italian greyhound; of course they met in the middle, of course there was not room for them to pass, neither could they go back. The height was a dangerous one for the greyhound, and to the water at the bottom he was extremely averse. The Newfoundland could have taken the leap in safety, but evidently did not want to. There was a fix! The little dog sat down on his haunches, stuck his nose straight up in the air, and howled. The Newfoundland stood intent, his face solemn with inward workings. Presently he gave a nudge with his nose to the howling greyhound—as if to say, "Be still, youngster, and listen." Then there was a silence and seeming confabulation for a second or two. Immediately the big dog spread his legs wide apart like a Colossus, bestriding the log on its extreme outer edges, and balancing himself carefully. The little dog sprang through the opening like a flash. When they reached the opposite shore the greyhound broke into frantic gambols of delight, and the Newfoundland, after his more sedate fashion, expressed great complacency in his achievement—as he surely had a right to do.

JIM GUPPINS was a very clever, nice good-dispositioned, thick-headed sort of a fellow, and was the butt of the girls in that neighborhood. The most brilliant thing he ever said was when some of the fair teasers questioned him one day in regard to his power of memory.

"How far back in your lifetime can you remember, Jim?"

"Oh, I can remember the day I was born," was the reply.

"The day you were born!" exclaimed one of the ladies of the party.

Why, Jim, what can you remember of that day?"

"Oh, I remember very distinctly, that on the day I was born I set on a little stool in the corner of the fireplace and cried for fear I was a girl.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated, Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any longer taking the large, repulsive and nauseous pills, composed of chalk, trash, and bulky ingredients, when we can by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be easily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Such is Dr. Pierce's Pellets, every one of which is a concentrated dose, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug shops. And from their wonderful cathartic power, in proportion to their size, those who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating cathartic.

$500 Reward is hereby offered by the proprietor of these Pellets, to any chemist who, upon analysis, will find in them any Calomel or other forms of mercury or any other mineral poison.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Pain in the Side, Sudden attacks, Pain in regions of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Clouded Scaldin Mood, Shortness of Breath, Blotches on the Skin, Rush of Blood to the Head, Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Yellow Colored Urine, Unnatural Discharges, Gloomy Forebodings, Dizziness, Nervous Pleasant Sensations, Pellets are the one remedy in use for all these derangements, as their action upon the entire economy is so universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their influence, that no disease can long exist where they are administered, but will yield to their power, and be eradicated from the system. In the case with the pills found in the drug stores, put up in cheap wood or pasteboard boxes, which, in all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative or Purgative is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction to all who use them.

Do not allow any druggist to induce you to take anything else on the ground that he may say it is just as good as my Pellets because he makes a larger profit on that which he recommends. If your druggist cannot supply them, enclose 25 cents and remit by return mail to

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the drunkard to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and rejuvenating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the power of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthened advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a speedy improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Biliousness, Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the combined excellencies of all in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Grateful thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Scarce a distempered physiologist There is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is entirely free from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no Vermifuges, no Anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases. Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, will be subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters once or twice a week, as a Preventive.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal organs. In their treatment, a purgative, assisting the cathartic action of the Bitters, is generally necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they not only promptly move the accumulated viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, but powerfully control the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Scaldhead, Ring-Worm, Syphilitic Affections, Mercurial Diseases, Dropsy, Pemale Weaknesses, Obstructions, Inflammations, and Liver Complaints, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all those causing a similar malady. By purifying the blood they remove the cause of disease, and by healing the sores in the inflammatory and tubercular deposits the blood becomes pure, the health, and a permanent cure is effected.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic and Carminative, Nutritive, Laxative, Tonic and Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific and Anti-Bilious.

The Aperient and mild Laxative properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are the best remedy known in all cases of obstructions and malignant fevers, for Calentura, Bilious and Intermittent fevers, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Nerves, Kidneys and Bladder.

Purify the body against disease by using this great Blood Purifier.

Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Dig, Dig, Dig. Ditch, Ditch, Ditch. Put in Tiles, Tiles, Tiles, or Bricks, Bricks, Bricks, and you will find your farm worth more money, and will be more healthy.

Directions for Use. Take a wine glass full before meals, and at bed time.

Dose, from a tablespoonful to a wine glass full, according to the age and condition of the patient.

Remember, Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the drunkard to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants.

By this improvement a Piano is made more durable and keeps the tone longer. We claim for our instruments that they are second to none, and they combine all the essential elements that constitute superior workmanship. We will give a written guarantee for five years.

Mr. CONRAD FREIMAN, member of our firm, will visit Bloomsburg four times a year to repair and attend to tuning of all Pianos. In the absence of Mr. FREIMAN, Mr. I. K. MILLER will attend to our business in Bloomsburg and is authorized to receive and solicit orders.

We can give the very best references.
